Sent by Livingstone to Dr. Crenshaw, who gave a copy to Gary Shaw, from whom I got it today. Shaw's copier is malfunctioning.

What Livingstone does not realize is that while she seems to corroborate what he has written, in part, she destroys it also with her account of the back wound. ^{He} He says there were two.

It is not unlikely that he'll ignore what he does not like and misuse what he does, he diagram~~ed~~ of the head wound as after all these ~~years~~ years she recalls it.

Supposedly he had her interviewed in England, has a transcript of that, and then asked her questions by mail.
